

Amy Romaniec

Owner of High Horse Farm and the artist of High Horse Farm Pottery resides in Pine Grove Mills. Amy refers to herself as an artist who maintains horses as a hobby. With approximately 50 ponies and horses, that is some hobby! As you will see, the animals in Amy's life are not restricted to equines. Two of her treasured charges, Honey and Bear, are seen below.

These are funny looking horses!

Some of you are familiar with Amy's pottery which has appeared in the Arts Festival, the People's Choice Festival, The Boalsburg Christmas Festival, and other events. Nationally, her Whippet and Irish Wolfhound stoneware serve as the top prizes for the national breed shows. Amy's eye and talent to recreate an animal's movement and anatomical correctness distinguishes her work.

Amy's work is a distinctive combination of sculpture on functional pieces of stoneware. Stephanie Dobiss' Foxfire trophy is another example of Amy's talent. Amy's interests and abilities go beyond horses and stoneware as the following slides will show.

More cows...udderly ridiculous!

Dog Breeder:

Mom Foxy and daughter Arabesque enjoying the sun. Arabesque later qualified as a Leader Dog with the Lion's club group in Michigan.

Horse rehabilitator:

When Marvin (on your left) arrived at Amy's, he could not be pastured with any other horse without his attacking the other animal. Here he is winning 6th place (out of 13) at the 2006 4-H District Pairs competition.

A camping expedition to Gettysburg, would the South have won if they had pink helmets? Charge!!!

While Monty Roberts was whispering to the Queen's horses, Amy whispered to Ghost, a mustang and Goblin's mom. (Goblin, a Pennies baby, is owned by Alice Kelsey and was featured in a previous biography.)

Big Boy, a Spotted Draft stallion, captured after a rainy spring day.

Guess who their daddy is!

Proving that her stallions can be ridden...Amy showing Big Boy at the Fall 2006 KDCTA Show and Pennies at a show in New Jersey.

How Amy spends her spring season...delivering foals and more foals!

The final product..they're worth it!

Life at Highhorse Farm

How many local parades benefit from Amy's ponies? Who else in the county could supply three parade worthy mounts for such angels?

Amy has hosted guest clinicians at High Horse Farm. This clinician specialized in riding with a secure seat.

Bellefonte: Welcome Home to the National Guard
A passion to honor those who protect the United States

Amy Romaniec
PO Box 312
Pine Grove Mills, PA 16868
814-238-0255
highhorsefarm@hotmail.com

Edited by Foxit PDF Editor
Copyright (C) by Foxit Software
For Evaluation Only.